AI won’t plug forwarder margin leaks without better data and processes · 9/10 High

The Loadstar · 16 Oct 2026 04:19 MST

Freight forwarders must tackle unbilled charges, manual rework, and unreliable data before expecting AI to protect their margins, according to Metro Shipping and Portcast. Speaking on The Loadstar Podcast, Ian Powell, tech and solutions director at Metro, said profitability could be eroded by incorrect buy and sell rates, costs not passed on to customers, and repeated administrative work. “If we’re constantly reworking activity, if we’re raising credits against jobs, re-invoicing jobs, that’s ..

CoreWeave CDS distress – 'investors sour on AI debt' · 8/10 High

The Loadstar · 15 Oct 2026 23:43 MST

CNBC reports: CoreWeave's credit stress continued to spiral on Thursday amid a broader sell-off in AI-related names. CoreWeave — a so-called neocloud company — has taken on more than $51 billion of debt and obligations to finance its AI infrastructure build-out. It's now facing a rebellion from stock and bond investors as concerns mount about AI overspending and debt levels. Yields on CoreWeave debt have continued to climb, with the yield to maturity ... We're 'shouldering cost burden of green transition', say carriers · 7/10 Medium

The Loadstar · 16 Oct 2026 04:15 MST

Shipping lines claim they are bearing the cost of investments in alternative fuels and lower-emission vessels, as shippers and their freight forwarders remain reluctant to pay more for greener shipping. That is according to speakers at the Singapore International Bunkering Conference and Exhibition yesterday. Pacific International Lines (PIL) head of operations and procurement (China) Chia Yujin said shippers in price-sensitive markets were not yet ready to pay for the industry's transitio

Ex-India spot rates and surcharges ease as peak comes to an end · 7/10 Medium

The Loadstar · 16 Oct 2026 03:45 MST

Container lines, sensing a gradual slowdown in Indian westbound volumes, are revisiting their surcharges and penalties, indicating a hot market may be turning decidedly cooler. The liners had been increasingly rolling booking cancellation and container no-show fees into their freight bills in recent months to maximise profitability from booming demand. Now, according to industry sources, Hapag-Lloyd, for one, has revised its cancellation fee drastically for Indian customers to $100 per container
