AI shippers still looking for capacity risk sharp airfreight peak squeeze · 9/10 High

The Loadstar · 14 Oct 2026 05:02 MST

AI infrastructure shippers, still seeking peak-season capacity, could push air freight rates sharply higher, as demand for servers, chips, and data centre equipment adds pressure to an already firm market. According to TAC Index, sources have reported that ecommerce customers and other major shippers with product launches had secured peak-capacity, while some AI hyperscalers had yet to book their space. The warning comes despite a Golden Week dip in TAC’s global Baltic ... The post AI ship
